

Large glasses, boys! Up to the ceiling. The old and young women of Wheeling. They come from the banks of the Hudson, From the springs of Cambridgeboro, From the dais of Niagara's spray, From incomparable Atlantic City, From America's region of magical lakes— They are here to begin the winter conquests. They're ready again, hearts to break.

Wheeling Society is at home again, and with it are to be found many house-guests, which, together with the ante-nuptial affairs promulgating, in honor of one of Wheeling's prettiest and most popular society girls whose wedding to a from out-of-town young man is near at hand, will occasion an unusually early beginning of the extension of social amenities. Many prominent in both the older and younger sets will be missed during the coming winter, absence from the city, because of removal of the families, stays on the continent and marriage to gentlemen with interests elsewhere, being the cause. Somewhat in recompense will be the taking up of abode here of former well known Wheeling people and the bringing home of several brides from other cities by leaders in the social realm. The week ending was notable for the Franksheim-Speidel wedding, the Sweeney dinner, the Stifel luncheon, and the reorganization of the Married Ladies' Club.

Mr. Thomas B. Sweeney entertained with a beautifully appointed dinner at the Fort Henry Club house last evening, in honor of Miss Todd, of Washington, Pa., the house-guest of his mother, Mrs. Sweeney, of Echo Point.

The Married Ladies' Euchre Club, for years one of the most prominent factors in Wheeling's entertainment series, met for reorganization at Zeigler's last Saturday. Mrs. Robert Jeffrey Reed was elected president of the organization, and Mrs. Frank Julian Hearne, whose coming departure from the city must be viewed as an irreparable loss to both the charitable and social centers, was elected an honorary member. Mrs. Hearne's presence at an affair stamped it with eclat, and her absence from future meetings will always be a source for sincere regret. The first reception will be given Friday afternoon, September 20, at the city residence of Dr. Robert J. Reed, the entertainers being Mrs. Reed and Mrs. William L. Glessner. Former members invited are Mrs. George B. Caldwell, Mrs. Charles W. Franksheim, Mrs. D. Garth Hearne, Mrs. Peetles Tatum, Mrs. Harry Fillmore Stallman, Mrs. Lawrence Sands, Mrs. Thomas Chalmers Moffat, Mrs. Charles Howard Simpson, Mrs. John Topping, Mrs. Harry Cecil Whitaker, Mrs. James Kelsey Hall, Mrs. Frank Hoffmann, Mrs. A. F. Husted, Mrs. Charles Hamilton, Jr., Mrs. Charles A. Frisell, Mrs. Gibson Lamb, Mrs. D. Carter List, Mrs. Harry Sands, Mrs. J. E. Taussig, Mrs. Andrew Wilson, Mrs. John Moffat, Mrs. G. A. Aschmann, Mrs. John D. Culbertson, Mrs. George Adams, Mrs. Jacob Wilson Grubb, Mrs. Walker I. Frisell, Mrs. Mary Delaplaine, Mrs. William L. Glessner, Mrs. O. Russell Wood, Mrs. George Wise, Mrs. Robert J. Reed. New members invited, who enlarge the club to a membership of forty, are Mrs. Oliver Thompson Rhodes, Mrs. George Laughlin, Mrs. B. C. Dent, Mrs. William P. Wilcox, Mrs. George Vardy, Mrs. Frank Hearne Crockett, Mrs. Samuel Hazlett, Mrs. Joseph Gibbs, Mrs. John H. Storer, Mrs. W. W. Irwin, Mrs. J. J. Holloway and Mrs. George Woods.

Mrs. George K. Wheat will spend the next week at Loch Lynn Heights, and return, accompanied by her daughter, Miss Fannie Wheat, who spent the summer in the mountains with Miss Bessie List. Miss List will be a house guest at the Wheat residence during the Mead-Caldwell wedding week.

Mrs. J. F. Merriman, of North Chapline street, is home from a visit at Morgantown with Mrs. Huffman, well known and remembered here as Miss Amelia Campbell, sister of Mr. Alexander Campbell.

Miss Ruth Crape, of Burlington, Ia., is the house guest of Mr. and Mrs. Julius Pollock, on North Chapline street.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Jones, of North Main street, have Miss Effie Lewis, of Pittsburgh, as their house guest.

Miss Mary Graham, daughter of Mr. William T. Graham, of Brookside, is visiting in Cumberland, Md.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Reed McKnight, of Pittsburgh, are the house guests of Mr. and Mrs. George K. McMechen, in Pleasant Valley.

Mrs. Martha E. Whitaker is in the city for a few days, the house guest of Miss Ella Hunter, on Fourteenth street.

Miss Mary Phinney, grand-daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Hobbs, of Massachusetts, is the house guest of Dr. and Mrs. Leon Reefer, of North Chapline street.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert C. Whitaker and family are now at MacKinnon.

A meeting of the members of the committee on entertainment of the Wheeling Alumni Association, was held at the high school last evening.

The committee decided to call a meeting of the entire association for Thursday, September 21, at 7:30 p. m., at which time plans for the fall entertainment will be discussed. All graduates of the public schools are requested to be present. The association, which recently organized with George W. Bowers as president; Harvey Jamison, vice president; Alma Spell, secretary, is in a flourishing condition.

Mrs. August Krantz entertained in a very delightful manner a number of her friends at her residence on Buckeye street, in Martin's Ferry, last evening. The interior of the house had previously been tastefully decorated with flowers and plants. About thirty guests were present and an enjoyable evening was spent by all who were fortunate enough to have been invited.

On Wednesday afternoon, Miss Grace Stone, of South Front street, Island, gave a brilliant reception in honor of her guest, Miss Hetzel, of New York. In the evening the young ladies who assisted Miss Stone in receiving were her guests at cards, followed by dancing. It was a delightful function.

A large trolley party was given over the Wheeling Railway Company's lines last night, by the young people of the Zane street, Chapline street, and Wesley M. E. churches.

A notable wedding of interest to many Wheeling people occurred at Canton on Thursday. The contracting parties were Mr. William J. Oby and Miss Georgia Van Fossen, both of Canton. The bride is a niece of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Odert, of South Chapline street, and Miss Gardner, of this city, was one of the bridesmaids. Among the guests present were: Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Oby, of Cleveland, Mr. and Mrs. Speaker, of Alliance; Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Odert, of Wheeling; Senator and Mrs. Silas J. Williams, of Miss Williams, of Alliance; Mr. J. D. Bibebe, of Chicago; Miss Krast, of Parkersburg; Mrs. James M. Seymour and daughter, of Norwalk; Miss Fern Fogle, Mr. Ellet and Dr. King, of Alliance, and Mr. J. E. Young, of Pittsburgh.

Miss Katherine Klinefelter, of Cincinnati, who has been the guest of Wheeling friends for the summer, has returned home. Miss Klinefelter is a charming girl and a host of friends here regret her departure.

Yesterday at noon, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Yost, in Colerain, occurred the wedding of their daughter, Miss Annie A. Yost, and Mr. Newton McMillen, of Medina, Ohio. The attendants were Miss Edith Yost, bridesmaid; Mr. Albert McMillen, best man; Mr. W. R. Hall and Miss Edna Adolph, of Bridgeport; Mr. Harry Bowman and Henry Toppling, Wilbur Topping, Robert Dalselt, Hal Bloch, Singleton Paul and Henry Caldwell.

Thursday evening at the home of Hon. and Mrs. G. S. McFadden, in Mountaineer, occurred the wedding of Mr. William H. McFadden and Miss Bessie L. Allen, of this city. Only the members of the families were present. The ceremony was performed by Rev. D. A. Cunningham, D. D., pastor of the First Presbyterian church, of this city. An elaborate dinner followed the ceremony. The groom is the manager of an iron mill in Pittsburgh, and his bride quite handsomely with a silver dinner service. More than a score of congratulatory telegrams were received.

Out at "Camp Birch," on Big Wheeling creek, the Linsly Institute cadets have been spending a week of great enjoyment, though the rigidity of the military discipline that rules within its confines represses any excessive wildness of spirits on the part of the youngsters. Yesterday afternoon the camp was visited by Prof. John M. Birch, late principal of the institute, accompanied by Rev. Joseph Speers, of the Second Presbyterian church, who were guests of honor. Mr. Speers took a turn at the rifle range, and scored two bulls-eyes out of three shots. Mr. Birch, however, would not endanger his prestige as the probable commander of a Wheeling military company by giving an exhibition of his skill or lack of skill with the rifle. This afternoon there will be many visitors in the camp from the city, and at 3 p. m. the boys will be addressed by Rev. Jacob Brittingham, rector of St. Luke's P. E. church, Island. The boys will break camp this evening and return to the city, preparatory to the opening of the fall term of the institute next Monday.

Mr. Charles W. Brockunier and daughter, Miss Sara Brockunier, of North Main street, are home from Rat Portage, Canada, for a few days, prior to a visit to New York. Their main street home is still closed.

The sudden death of Mrs. Howard McCourtney, of Chicago, news of which reached this city late yesterday afternoon, came as a severe shock to the relatives and many friends who met Mrs. McCourtney on her visit at the James R. McCourtney residence. Sincere sympathy is extended from Wheeling society to Mr. Howard McCourtney in his very sad and unexpected bereavement.

Dr. and Mrs. Frank LeMayne Hupp and daughter Elizabeth, of Fourteenth street, are expected home to-day from New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward B. Franksheim will be at home after September 20, at the Franksheim residence, Echo Point.

Miss Cornelia Stifel, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Louis C. Stifel, left for Boston to pursue her vocal studies.

Miss Jennie Bailey, of the Island, is home from a visit in Pittsburgh.

Miss Anna Conrad charmingly entertained a number of her friends Thursday evening, at her home on South Eoff street.

A party of their friends were delightfully entertained Wednesday evening by Misses Annie Laughlin and Mamie and Anna Henry, at the home of the Misses Henry, in Leatherwood. A feature of the social diversion was a cake walk, won by Mr. Louis Dimmey and Miss Annie Henry.

Mr. John L. Wagner, of Columbus, is the guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Wagner, on Twelfth street.

Miss Charlotte Carothers, of Washington, Pa., is the guest of Miss Henrietta Harper.

Miss Mary H. Phinney has returned from a visit to Pittsburgh and Washington, Pa., and is the guest of the Misses Stifel, on North Main street.

Miss Virginia Moffatt was a charming hostess to a party of her friends at a musicale at her home in Wooddale, Tuesday evening, given in honor of Miss Miller, Miss Moffatt's house guest.

Mr. Charles H. Geiger was tendered a pleasant surprise at his home, on Maryland street, Island, Tuesday evening, in honor of his recent marriage. Mr. Geiger is colonel of the Uniform Rank, K. of P., and members of the order in this city, with Meister's band, formed the surprise party. They were tendered an informal reception by Mr. and Mrs. Geiger.

Among the young men who have left for college or who will leave this month are the following: University of Virginia—William Cracraft, Frank Schmidt, Grafton Beall and Will Kenned; Washington & Jefferson—Charles Fisher, of Bridgeport; Joseph Paul, Walter McCune and Edward Kline; Cornell—Elwood Horkheimer, Louis Grubb and Arthur Stifel; Wooster—Jesse Speyer; Cascadella School, Utica, N. Y.—Herbert Horkheimer.

Mr. Emery W. Yerlan and Miss Ella

aboth M. Kelley, of Bellaire, were married Thursday evening by Rev. Charles P. Prouditt, of the United Presbyterian church, at the home of the bride. A few friends of the couple were present, and a very pleasant time was had discussing the wedding supper and congratulating the bride and groom. Mr. Yerlan is connected with the Cleveland & Pittsburgh railroad. They are now visiting friends at Waterford, O., and will remain a week or ten days.

Mr. Scott Heatherington and Miss Anna Schramm were married at the home of the bride's parents, in Bellaire, Thursday night by Rev. Charles M. Watson, of the Christian church. The groom is the youngest son of Mr. W. S. Heatherington, of the Belmont Coal Company, and an active and energetic young man, while the bride is a popular member of the First M. E. church choir.

THE RAILROADS.

"Yesterday and To-Day" is a neat little booklet of fewer than thirty-five pages that tells a marvelous story in a crisp and modest way. It is a history of how the old Galena & Chicago Union Railroad Company, incorporated in 1836, has grown into system having 7,321.96 miles of main track. That this booklet will be carefully preserved and studied by every progressive railroad man and student of railway affairs in the country is not to be doubted. There are two reasons for this expectation: It is not often any railway makes to intimate a statement of its affairs as is contained in this brochure; then the Chicago & Northwestern railway system has a peculiar standing in the railway world for substantial achievement in the matters of conservative, economical management and solid growth, progress and expansion. The history of this road is a star chapter in the history of the railway development of the United States, and in this little book the subject is presented in a chapter and a short one at that. But the booklet is so meaty that it might well serve as a kind of primer on the subject of railroad building and management. Every man who is alive to the marvels of modern business life, who patronizes the railroad as a passenger or shipper, will find this pamphlet more interesting than the best short story of the day. It will be carried in the pockets of thousands of western farmers and business men. No doubt a copy can be obtained by addressing the general passenger agent, Chicago.

To Have Service Badges.

There are many uniformed employees of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad who have spent the better part of their lives with the company, but very few people are aware of their length of service and devotion to duty, that has made them valued men. Vice President and General Manager Underwood will shortly issue an order providing for service stripes for the men, that the public may know of their faithfulness and ability.

A gold stripe will mean five years of service, and a silver stripe two years. Some of the Baltimore & Ohio conductors will be entitled to from seven to nine gold stripes.

The company will also furnish conductors, brakemen and baggage men of all classes with badges, so that they may be easily distinguished by those unfamiliar with the service.

Grand Orient's "Doins."

King Xerxes council No. 1074, of the Grand Orient, has decided to hold some elaborate "doins" Tuesday evening, October 10, the eve of the K. of P. grand lodge meeting. There will be a street parade, followed by initiation ceremonies and a banquet at the Pythian castle. The Grand Orient is composed of men who are members of secret organizations, organized for the development of man's social nature, and its gatherings are of a kind calculated to promote peace and good will among men, with hilarity a striking feature.

Most of the elections in West Virginia are some distance off, but the classic town of Fulton will be in the throes of a municipal clash next January, and already the natives are discussing the same. Fulton's elections are the hottest that ever ambled down the pike. Mayor Edward Hamm will be out for re-election against ex-Mayor Roth, and it is said is willing to lay a good wager that success will smile upon him as of yore. He held the office for several years, but was forced into the shadows of bitter defeat on two occasions, getting a fresh hold on the reins last election. Elections are mighty uncertain at all times and places, but "the village around the hill" lingers in the lap of shadowy doubt until the last ballot is tallied up. With only about 150 voters in the village, a candidate ought to be able to define his chances. But he can't get a bead on them.

HERE AND THERE.

And now there comes the season's bore.—The man who fails to close the door. He reckons not of the warning sign, This dreaded man of absent mind, But leaves the room with careless stride, And likewise, leaves a door thrown wide. What boots he of the chilling breeze—The inmates left to fret and freeze? Perchance, he circled round the stove, Yet closed no door as hence he hove. He wanders on his blissful way, And whistles in a manner gay. Nor heeds the onths that greet his trail, Nor rooms chilled by the frosty gale. And when his call is due once more—Behold! the same old open door. The ways of such men do remind Us of the faults in humankind. —J. W.

The high privates in the rear ranks are not confined to the army, nor is distinction due to the men behind the guns only in the navy, if all the battles, whether for gain, glory or amusement, are considered. What's true of the great service rendered by the private soldier and the plain sailor applies with undeniable force to the men in the driving line of a football team. As in the great victories on land and sea, only the captains and the commanders were smothered with laurels, the praise meted out to the rank and file of the gridiron band being little more than a generalization, while the newspapers swell with eulogies of Brown, the great half-back, or little Smith's wonderful ninety-yard run. Except in the printed line-up, the boys who bear the brunt and the bruises of the enemy's massed attack, fail to win the enthusiastic plaudits.

It is to their determined and dogged resistance, their strain of every nerve and every muscle, of every fiber, of every plume and onslaught, that withstands the rushes and the tricks to gain an inch of coveted ground. And the stalwart heroes in the line are called into play when the aggressive charge is to be made. How they must leap into the fray—pushing, shoving sturdy opponents hither and thither—on and on they must go, tearing big gaps and ripping holes in the enemy's defense for Half-back Brown to go through! And panting, exhausted, with the feverish pulse of excitement, and the love of battle urging them on—how they form and collect their numbers for another and another human battering ram—ceasing only when the opposing goal line is reached and little Smith is pushed over the struggling, quivering heap, for the glorious touch-down!

But when the day is won and the crisp autumn sunlight looks down on a mob of frenzied rosters, on a waving field of colors—who is it borne away on the shoulders of the wild-eyed, screaming enthusiasts? Not the modest Thurston, the centre, the forefront of the charges—not the giants who stood to either side, as with Horatius at the bridge—no, they limp and stagger away, yet without a lip-curl of disappointment or dissent. They made the victory possible by their symmetry of attack and defense. But the cold truth of the press next day sings of Half-backs Brown and Smith.

All hail the men behind the guns! All hail the men in the football line!

They had reached the stage where salutations of more or less warmth were considered comparatively unimportant. They bore to each other the question was popped the previous evening. So when he rapped at the door his mind was made up. Ere he stood a moment on the porch, the door flew open. She was there. In another moment he had kissed her. Now he might have taken time by the ear, for she knew there was company in the parlor, but the attack was so sudden, you know. Even had her eyes given warning, that island youth would have been spared the mortification. He was not to blame for the blushes, nor the titling of the visitors inside, and then, love is blind. It was a painful realization that he had reached the knowledge that other eyes were on them, and night hadn't dropped its veil of darkness. There are times when a man is content to be alone. He is a young man fled whence he came. The poor girl left on the scene didn't have to explain. Her visitors all united in agreeing that the counter was unusually cool for September, and the weather tone held out until they ended their call.
